

Metadata

All data comes from the American Time Use Survey, as collected by the Census Bureau and United States Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The files we used, most specifically, were the ATUS's data set 5, the respondent file, which delineated how a respondent spent each day; data set 6, the roster file, which included each respondent's personal traits; and data set 4, the ATUS-CPS file, which included each respondent's educational information.

For more information on the data set, including information about the variables that it included and methodology, see the codebook in the metadata supplement.
